

SUPPORTING YOUTH VOICE WITH AUDIO AND VIDEO

WEEKLY WEBINAR

Every Thursday at 4:00PM

Length: 60 Minutes

Audience: 6-12 Educators

Register at:

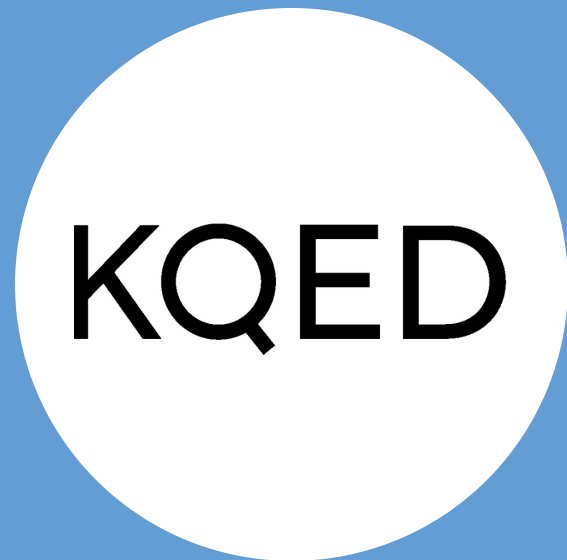

https://kqed.zoom.us/webinar/register/WN_wOBz7od6TDKV_GOJ2uLwlw

In this 60-minute webinar, get started with KQED Youth Media Challenge: Let's Talk About Election 2020, an audio and video commentary challenge co-hosted with PBS NewsHour Student Reporting Labs and the National Writing Project.

The webinar will focus on starting the challenge in a distance-learning context, accessing KQED's ready-to-use resources and analyzing youth-produced commentaries already on the site. The Let's Talk About Election 2020 Challenge is hosted on KQED Learn where students can also participate in online discussions with peers from around the country and respond with text, graphic, video or audio.

For more information about KQED Learn's Election 2020 challenge visit: learn.kqed.org/election2020

For more information, contact:
Nicholas Zefeldt, Director Curriculum and Instruction
nzefeldt@cccoe.k12.ca.us | 925-942-5332

KQED serves educators and students nationwide by providing free, high-quality resources that strengthen media literacy skills, empower youth voice and encourage civil discourse. As a nonprofit and a leader in media innovation, KQED provides standards-aligned classroom content and professional development courses that educators can trust. The KQED education team is comprised of educators and experienced media professionals with a passion for equity and access in education.